A LIST

Of all the

Irish Army in Ireland

Under the late King James

WITH OTHER

Important Affairs Relating to that Kingdom.

SIR,

I Have yours of the 9th Instant, and finding News acceptable, tho I cannot promise all mine at first hand, yet such as I meet with from Credible Persons, I here send you. The List on the other side I am informed was the State of King James's Army in February last, as taken out of the Muster-Rolls; I have it from a good hand, and believe the most material parts of it to be true, tho 'tis possible enough there may be some small mistake in Names. This will acquaint you with the state of their Army. Ours here is in very good Condition. The Danes are all very Expert Soldiers, and as likely to do Service as any Men I ever saw. They are well Clothed, and I believe well Paid. We hear from some who left [illegible], that the late King James was building Forts round the City, and also round the Wall of the Park [illegible] in—they add, that Gabions often happen between the [illegible] that it was usual with the Irish to Plunder the Protestant Houses, and take what Provisions they find. They further say, that a Party of the Garrison at Belturbet Marched all Night about Twelve Miles Space, to that which was the [illegible] which our Men [illegible] cate, before they will Surrender; they must expect no Quarter from them; upon which they Surrendered. In the Fort was much Provision, and Cattle; with them 120 Cattle that were Grazing near that place.

Three hundred and fifty Firelocks of Colonel St. John's Regiment, and a Troop of Dominick Dragoons, Marched from Armagh to Castle Blany, to beat up the Enemies Quarters, and in sight of twice the Number brought away 500 l's worth of black Cattle. A considerable Party of our Forces have fallen upon the Irish at Charlemount, got within their utmost Trenches, and given 'em a great defeat. We have here a fine Spring, God be Blessed, and the Feavour is almost totally abated. If any have it, it is not so Malignant by much, as heretofore. There are now a great many Sail of Ships here waiting for a Wind for England. The Mary Galley which Sprung a Leak this day, being fair Weather, though the Wind at N. E. or there abouts, strong against her. The Dartmouth and other two are ordered for the Highlands of Scotland. I pray Sir, now and then favour me with some of your English News, for we get little here. My Service to your Lady and Friends. I am

Your Affectionate Friend
and Humble Servant

A

A LIST of the Irish Army in Ireland, under the late King James.

H[illegible]E.

	Troops	Men
Lord [illegible]	[illegible]9	50
Lord [illegible]	[illegible]	50
Col. [illegible]	[illegible]	50
Col. [illegible]	[illegible]	50
Lord [illegible]	[illegible]	50
Col. [illegible] Lacey	8	50
Col. [illegible] Park	8	50
Col. [illegible]	8	50

In all Eight Regiments, Containing 2450 Men.

DRAGOON.

Lord Dungan	[illegible]	50
Sr. William Neagle	[illegible]	50
Col. Daniel O Brian	[illegible]	50
Col. Simon Luttrel	[illegible]	50
Col. [illegible]gd	[illegible]	50
Sr. [illegible] Cotterel	[illegible]	50
Col. [illegible]rell	[illegible]	50

In all Seven Regiments, Containing 1800 Men besides the Troop of Guards Commanded by the Lord Dover.

FOOT.

	Comp.	Men
Regiment of Guards	20	90
Lord Mountcastle	13	62
Earl of Clancarty	13	62
Lord Fitz-James	13	62
Col. John Hambleton	13	62
Earl of Clanrichard	13	62
Earl of Antrim	13	62
Earl of [illegible]trone	13	62
Lord [illegible]nsborow	[illegible]	62
Lord Clare	13	62
Lord Galway	13	62
Lord Slane	13	62
Lord [illegible]	13	62
Lord [illegible]dale	13	62
Sir [illegible] Brown	13	62
Sr. John Fitz-gerald	13	62
Sr. Maurice Eustace	13	62
Col. William Nugent	13	62
Col. Henry Dillon	13	62
Col. John Grace	13	62
Col. Richard Butler	13	62
Col. Edward Butler	13	62
Col. Thomas Butler	13	62
[illegible] Bourk now Lord Raphoe	13	62
[illegible] Mac	13	62
Col. [illegible] O Neil	13	62
Col. Arthur Mac [illegible]	13	62
Col. [illegible]	13	62
Col. [illegible]ough	13	62
[illegible] Henry [illegible]	13	62
Col. [illegible] Mac Carty Moor	13	62
Col. [illegible] O Neil	13	62
Col. [illegible]	13	62
[illegible] John Barrett	13	62
[illegible] Daniel O Dwyer	13	62
Col. Oliver O [illegible]	13	62
Sir Michael Creagh	13	62
Sir Daniel Bryan	13	62
Col Dudley Bagnel	13	62
Col. Charles O Bryan	13	62
Col. Roger Mac guillicuddy	13	62
Col. Kilmallock	13	62
Lord Iveagh	13	62
Col. John Brown	13	62
Col. Edward Nugent	13	62
Col. Mac Mahon	13	62
Col. Edward Reyly	13	62
Col. Fielding	13	62

In all 48 Regiments, containing [illegible] Men.

Sixteen Regiments disbanded, viz.

Major General Taylor.

Lord Caillecon[illegible]

Col. Roger O[illegible]

Sir Christopher [illegible]

Col. Maurice O Donnel.

Col. [illegible]

Col. Roger Mac [illegible]

Col. Christopher [illegible]

Col. Bryan Mac Dermot

Col. [illegible]

Sir [illegible] Butler

Sir Edward Scot

Col. Miles K[illegible]

NEW BOOKS PUBLISHED.

A pleasant new Play Intituled, The late Revolution: Or, the Happy Change. A Comedy.

[illegible] Anecdote against Luft. By R. C. Minister.

LONDON: Printed for William Faulkner in the Old-Bayly, 1690.